If Alan can get moving so can you!

A MAN who was told he would never walk again – but proved his doctors wrong – is hoping to inspire others to improve their fitness.

Alan Burton, 57, is one of 10 'cover' stars appearing on posters to promote a new Active St Eds campaign launched this week.

Alan was fit and healthy until a freak accident four years ago in which he fell off a ladder at work and plummeted 30 feet on to a concrete floor.

He broke his neck and underwent a five-hour operation to fit a metal plate. He spent a month in Addenbrooke's, followed by another nine months at Stoke Mandeville, where it was discovered that he had suffered a further fracture to his spine in the accident.

Alan was told it was unlikely that he would ever be able to walk again or even feed himself.

He was given the bleak choice of a risky seven-hour operation to try to repair the damage or to lie on his back for six months, with a chance that it would fix itself. Alan took the second option and it worked.

Over time, with the help of physiotherapists and sheer determination, Alan learned to walk again. After two and a half years there was no more the physios could do to improve Alan's mobility so he started working out at the gym at Haverhill Leisure Centre, with the help of his carer.

Alan and his wife Dawn moved to a bungalow in Churchill Avenue, Haverhill, and he is unable to work, but very positive about the future. He said: "I have been successfully using the gym twice a week and the improvement to my strength and balance has exceeded my expectations. For example, I can now walk around the supermarket holding on to the trolley. That is something I did not see happening this soon, but I put it down to my work at the gym."

"After something like this happens you realise what is important in life. For years ago I was told I would never walk again and this is not the life I imagined. How very glad I am to prove that theory wrong. You can either sit in a wheelchair for the rest of your life and wait to die, or you can start living, and I wanted to live. I am still here, there are things I cannot do, but I don't

I HOPE you all enjoyed reading last month's interview with Matthew Hancock MP.

The response has been positive and everybody's kind comments are appreciated. This month I have put local police inspector Peter Ferrie under the spotlight. It was interesting to hear his views about how he will be tackling local crime issues while also dealing with the Government imposing 20 per cent budgetary cuts.

I was impressed with his desire to continue to drive down local crime rates but I detected a concern as to how the police force would be able to maintain standards with budget reductions; also how he will keep the morale and motivation of his officers high while their conditions of employment are changing.

I think it is unfair to seem to be making political assumptions but I am confident that Home Secretary Theresa May will not be at the top of Insp Ferrie's Christmas card list.

However, it was reassuring that Insp Ferrie wished to emphasise his personal commitment to protecting front-line services and, hopefully, for us as a business community and as members of the general public we will continue to see local crime issues being robustly policed.

The fame (or should that be infamy!) of this column continues to grow and on the back of it I managed to get David Gold, the chairman of West Ham United Football Club and owner of the Ann Summers chain, to agree to my request for an interview. This resulted in my fellow CXG directors Daniel Pilley and Elaine Grubb joining me in spending more than five hours last week as guests in his home. It is surrounded by 55 acres of grounds, had a helicopter parked there and incorporated a tennis court and golf course!

There was NO swimming pool – and if you want to know why you will have to wait until the interview is published! He told us about how he built up a business from a market stall to an empire that today has a valuation of several hundred million pounds.

I am sure that readers will find this interview interesting

INTERVIEW: Insp Peter Ferrie

Tell us a little about your background. How long have you been in the job?

I was born and bred in Suffolk and I've been with the Suffolk Police for 20 years. I've had various roles, starting as a constable in Sudbury, moving to Haverhill in 1994 and was a beat officer for eight years which I loved. I moved to Special Branch in Felixstowe for 18 months and was promoted to sergeant. I then spent time as a sergeant in Newmarket before being promoted to inspector and moving back to Haverhill in October last year.

What have you found to be your most difficult challenges?

The difficulty is juggling the various aspects of the role. I spend a fair amount of my working life in Bury St Edmunds (BSE) as a response inspector and deal with major incidents in West Suffolk. I am also responsible for prisoner welfare in BSE, which could be as many as 15-20 at any given time. Unfortunately, this means I have less time for local issues in Haverhill. For example, if I am unable to attend local meetings I could be dealing with a stabbing in Newmarket, a rape in Sudbury, a murder in BSE or prisoners in BSE. That is my most difficult challenge – how can I find the time in order to ensure every aspect of the job receives the time it deserves?

With the ongoing announcements of cuts, have you identified specific savings that will enable you to protect our front-line services? Are we going to see fewer policemen on our streets?

No you won't. The roles affected by the cuts are inspector/chief inspector/superintendent ranks. This is the reason I am covering the West Suffolk area; if I had been put into the role a year ago I would only be inspector for Haverhill. The beat officer and CPSO role has actually been expanded in Haverhill since March, so in fact, we have more resource available. The patrolling officers and SNT (Safer Neighbourhood Teams) have not and will not go down in number. Whatever happens regarding cuts, we are committed to ensuring the number of policeman on our streets will not diminish, although the middle and high-ranking officers have been cut which means the officers still left at these grades, such as myself, having to take on more duties to cover the losses. We were busy before but we are all going that extra mile to fulfil our duties, but it is a big challenge.

What particular policies are you pursuing locally to control anti-social behaviour?

There has been a massive reduction in anti-social behaviour in Haverhill in the past year. Compared to the previous three years we are about 40 per cent down. This is largely due to the excellent Safer Neighbourhood Team. Before the formation of this team, officers would be called upon to deal with anti-social behaviour and then finish their shift and not be involved with the issue again. Now, the SNT officers 'own' the behaviour, retaining responsibility within the team until issues are dealt with, they have built up an expertise on anti-social behaviour, and they work closely with partners. We also have a new computer system, which enables us to record and track anti-social behaviour, and repeat offenders, repeat victims and repeat locations are flagged up.

How are you going to minimise petty crime that can have a big impact on businesses such as graffiti, shoplifting and vandalism?

All crime level figures are down in Haverhill. I believe the reason behind this is the young people of Haverhill are much better behaved than they were before. I have noticed an improvement since I was here as a beat officer a few years ago and when you look at the figures the town generally is in a far better position regarding crime. Even when you talk of simple things like the flowers in the High Street for example, they wouldn't have survived a single day when I was here 18 years ago. I feel it is a different and better town these days.

As a business, burglaries can have a real impact on profit. How can you reassure the business community you are taking this problem seriously?

As long as we are told about problems we can focus on the area. We have a daily tasking system which officers book on to three times a day and when the sergeant has briefed them the officers will be told, for example, to visit an area four times throughout the day. As for dwelling burglaries, we have put a lot of the offenders in prison. About six-nine months ago we had a spate of burglaries in the town centre but we put extra patrols on the High Street between 3am and 4am.

At the time a group of young lads were causing trouble but as soon as we targeted them it stopped. We had a meeting on June 18 at the Days Inn Hotel – we invited business owners from the industrial estate along to voice their concerns. We realised we had to get the businesses more involved with the SNT, and the good thing about Haverhill and the way it is made up is it doesn't usually take us long to work out who is responsible for a crime spree and deal with them accordingly.

and inspirational. Mr Gold was born into abject poverty and clawed his way to the position he holds today. I would recommend that you look out for it some time next month – I am sure it will provide a whole host of business ideas.

It is nice to know that the Weekly News can obtain such a scoop without resorting to anything more than polite requests!

This week, I am interviewing Mark Prisk, the Minister of State for Business and Enterprise, who has kindly agreed to support our local "Dragons' Den" initiative. I will also be getting a central Government view on the issues facing small business today; as such policies have an impact locally.

Please let me know your views about Insp Ferrie's interview. The leader of St Edmundsbury Borough Council, John Griffiths, has also agreed to be put under the spotlight. If you have any pressing issues you would like me to bring to the table please contact me on robin@cxggroup.co.uk.

'Stars' bid to inspire fitness call myself disabled – I call myself less able."

Another Haverhill 'cover star' is mum Kirsty Millard, 29, from Recreation Road, Haverhill, who started running and completed the London Marathon last year, losing three stones and raising £2,400 for charity in the process.

She went on to run the Dublin Marathon, has since given birth to her second child and aims to run the Berlin Marathon in September for Children with Cancer.

Kirsty said: "Since I started becoming more active it has made a tremendous difference to the way I feel and look. I can now run around the park with my boys and not be out of breath. It is my 'me' time to be Kirsty and not mummy. I go out in the evenings instead of sitting watching TV and it makes me feel better about myself."

Others include James Warren, 29, of Masons Close, Haverhill, who plays five-a-side football every Wednesday at Haverhill Leisure Centre, as well as playing rugby and coaching youngsters.

Tom Cole, 23, who has Down's Syndrome, learned to swim at Haverhill Leisure Centre and has since gone on to become a world record holder and win many medals. Tom, from Great Walsingham, trains at the Haverhill pools six times a week and also uses the gym.

His mother Barbara said: "It has changed his life. People who have Downs have a much shorter life expectancy than others and by keeping active Tom will have a much better chance of living as long as a normal person. He caught pneumonia when he was five, so his lungs were quite weak and he was always going down with a lot of chest infections. Exercising in and out of the pool has made him a lot fitter and healthier."

Swim: Tom Cole.

ST Edmundsbury is already the best in the country at keeping residents fit – but now it has seen the launch of a new campaign to get even more people on the move.

The new "ActiveStEds" campaign to raise awareness of the benefits of physical activity to quality of life was launched by Abbeycroft Leisure in Haverhill on Tuesday.

Mayor of St Edmundsbury Cllr Tim Marks was joined by Warren Smythe, chief executive of Abbeycroft Leisure, which runs Haverhill Leisure Centre, at the launch along with 10 people from Haverhill and Bury St Edmunds. They have been chosen as 'cover stars' to be featured in a poster campaign using their stories to inspire others. Also at the launch was Haverhill's PC Simon Bourne, who competes in extreme triathlon events and will represent the UK at a gruelling Decca man challenge later this year.

Cllr Marks said: "What a great idea. We need to get the message across not just to young people, but to reasonably old ones like me, who are a growing section of our community, and we do need to keep them fit and active."

Warren said he hoped the campaign would be part of the Olympic legacy for St Edmundsbury, by making people more active. He added: "In this Olympic year Abbeycroft wants to inspire people in the borough to start some form of physical activity and understand that the benefits of exercise go beyond the traditional reasons of losing weight and inches. We hope the wonderful stories from people who live in Bury St Edmunds and Haverhill on how exercise has benefited them and their lives will inspire others in their community to start something to keep active.

"With our partners help we want to spread the word on how you can fit activity into your life and benefit from better sleep, keep stress under control and feel good."

A Sport England survey published in December revealed that St Edmundsbury has the highest increase in adult sport participation in the country.

For more information about the campaign and to sign up for your free leisure card to collect Active Points, which can be exchanged for money off online at 400 High Street retailers visit www.acleisure.com/active-st-eds.

Devoted family pay tribute to Emma, 17

Loved music: Emma Mayes had Retts Syndrome.

A GIRL with profound disabilities – who only ever spoke three words – has died aged just 17.

Emma Mayes spent much of her life in hospital and later at the East Anglia's Children's Hospice in Milton, but in line with her family's wishes she spent her final hours at home in Millfields Way, Haverhill.

Devoted mum Sharon, dad Ashley and younger sister Sasha, 13, paid tribute to Emma and the joy she had brought to them.

Sharon, who works with children with disabilities at Granta School in Linton, said support from staff at EACH had meant Emma could be at home, rather than back in hospital or at the hospice, when she passed away on June 2, just a month before her 18th birthday.

Emma spent weeks in hospital as a baby, at one point having 20 to 30 seizures a day, before she was finally diagnosed with Retts Syndrome in 1998. Despite her development being severely affected – she had very little communication and walked unsteadily – Emma managed to attend Hillside Special School in Sudbury.

Staff at the former Woolworth's store in Haverhill helped raise £5,000 to pay for a lift in the family home. Two years ago Emma's health had deteriorated further and she was found to have a serious heart condition, which gave her a life expectancy of only two to five years without major surgery.

Emma's parents made the heartbreaking decision not to go ahead with the surgery, which she was considered unlikely to survive because of her other problems.

Sharon said: "We decided on quality of life rather than quantity for her, by not putting her through the operation. Life was very difficult for her. She only ever said three words and then only for a very short time. Those words were 'mum', 'dad' and 'nan, and I am so truly blessed to have heard her utter my name."

"We did have lots of smiles; she would laugh and she liked cuddles. She would also touch your face, or push you away if she did not want you to touch her. Feeding was always a problem for her, she often did not want to eat or drink. She was completely dependent on us for everything."

"She loved music and would sit and rock in her chair, clap her hands and stamp her feet. When we got the lift I could not believe how much money was raised. We felt like the whole town was behind us. The Dream Come True charity sent us to Florida and we swam with the dolphins together."

"She had spent a lot of time on respite care at the Milton Hospice over the past 18 months and we are so grateful to their staff and Dr Lucy Grove for making sure her end-of-life care was exactly how we wanted it."

"We laughed and cried so much over her short time with us and it was an honour and a privilege to look after her. She has left a huge void in our lives which will be very hard to fill."

Demo planned for health centre axe

ANGRY town councillors are planning a demonstration outside a walk-in health centre on the day it closes and demanding that the £1.2m saved by the NHS be reinvested in the town.

Members of Haverhill Town Council will be manning their market stall again on Saturday in support of the joint campaign with the Weekly News, launched in May, for better health facilities in the town to replace the popular Crown Health Centre, which will close on July 28. Already more than 4,000 signatures have been collected and the petition remains open for more.

At a meeting on Tuesday night town councillors agreed to continue the campaign to press for more provision. So far only a one-off interim payment of just under £50,000 has been offered to the town's doctors to fund extra sessions during the transitional period after the clinic closes. Dr Paul Stephenson, managing partner at Christmas Maltings and Clements practice, described the offer as "ludicrous".

Town clerk Will Austin said the town council would liaise with the town's doctors to see what they needed to cope in the future. He said: "We will have a presence at the Crown Health Centre on July 28. Members of the public can come and join us in demonstrating our determination that the money that is saved from closing the centre should be re-invested in Haverhill."

Carer in murder trial

A CARER accused of murdering a pensioner in his home last December is due to go on trial next week.

Paul Norfolk, 77, died from head injuries at home in Castle Lane, Haverhill, Suffolk, shortly after Christmas. His body was found when police entered his house after concerns were raised by neighbours.

Officers also discovered Bunthawee Rimmer, 49, also of Castle Lane, badly injured inside. She was taken to Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge for treatment and arrested after being released from hospital.

At a previous hearing at Ipswich Crown Court in April, speaking through a Thai interpreter, Rimmer denied murder. A final review of the case took place yesterday when it was agreed that her trial would begin on Monday, July 2. Rimmer will remain in custody until the start of her trial, which is expected to last for seven days.

Torch relay needs YOU!

RESIDENTS are urged to volunteer as stewards for the arrival of the Olympic Torch Relay in Haverhill – to get the best view!

Huge crowds are expected to line the streets when the torch arrives in town at about 2.40pm on Saturday, July 7 – crowds of 20,000 or more have turned out to other comparable sized towns it has visited.

Many roads will be closed to traffic and residents are advised to do their shopping and other jobs in the town in the morning, then either watch the relay from their gardens if they live on the route or walk into town in the afternoon.

The parade will pass by the first day of the Haverhill Show on the Recreation Ground in Camps Road, and Haverhill Town Council has extended its street entertainment programme, which is part of the Haverhill Festival, on the same day. There will also be Olympic-themed fitness classes and competition run by Abbeycroft Leisure at Jubilee Plaza.

The torch will be carried by 11 people on its route through the town, including Haverhill residents Paralympic wheelchair basketball player Caroline Maclean and teenager Issy Gower.

Event manager Howard Cook said: "This is potentially going to be the biggest event in Haverhill's history. We want to do it properly and we are going to need some help. We are warning people to expect congestion, but it is once in a lifetime and we want to show Haverhill at its best.

"Public safety is our first concern in staging this event and especially so if the crowds reach the levels experienced in similar towns. Stewards are there to pass on information and assist in the unlikely event of an incident.

"They are given full instruction and in return for their time, they get the best view of the Torch Relay in town."

The commitment involves attending a briefing session at the control centre in the centre of town at 11.30am, being ready in position from 12.40pm until the torch has passed through Haverhill at 3.15pm and then checking out at the control centre.

Nick Keeble, deputy event manager, said: "Anyone over 18 who would enjoy being part of the team can contact me on (01440) 714140, nick@haverhill.gov.uk or leave their details at the Haverhill Arts Centre in the High Street and I will get back to them".

Swan Lane will be closed to traffic all day and the market will be moved to the Market Square. The route of the torch is marked by large white flags provided by Haverhill Town Council bearing a specially designed Haverhill 2012 logo.

More information is available at www.stedmundsbury.gov.uk/london2012 or www.haverhill-tc.gov.uk.

Wristbands mark visit

AS teenager Issy Gower proudly carries the Olympic torch through her home town, many of its residents will be sporting wristbands to commemorate the occasion and raise money for a cancer charity.

Issy, 13, and paralympic wheelchair basketball player Caroline Maclean will be the only Haverhill residents among the 11 people who will take part when the torch procession arrives in the town.

Mother Shirley Gower, of Arrendene Road, Haverhill, nominated her daughter as a torchbearer and came up with the idea of wristbands after seeing banners up in the town bearing the Haverhill Olympic logo designed by local company The Design Office.

Mrs Gower said: "We have had 1,000 made as we thought that would be a reasonable amount to sell. We are really lucky that Castle Manor, Samuel Ward and Westfield schools have said that their pupils can wear them until the end of term. It is a great way of promoting the Olympic torch and raising awareness of bone cancer as well."

Linton Village College pupil Issy has joined her family and friends in a fundraising campaign which has already raised more than £20,000 for the Bone Cancer Research Trust in memory of her older sister Jess, who died in 2011 aged just 14, from osteosarcoma, a form of primary bone cancer. Team Jess will be tackling the Pembrokeshire Coastal Path on July 21 – to sponsor them, visit www.justgiving.com/team-jess.

Wristbands costing £2 are on sale in Lloyds TSB, Haverhill Arts Centre, Indulgence, Tony Strouger, Zeiss, Sonia's, Déjà vu, the Woolpack pub and several schools.

Kedington Meadowlark

AN Olympic pageant was the theme for an annual village event which attracted crowds of visitors.

The Kedington Meadowlark, organised by Kedington Community Association, started with a walking pageant through the village, led by Miss Meadowlark, 12-year-old Amy Maquire, and her attendants Charlotte Marshall, Marlise Bush and Brittany Boulwood.

The Ketton Connect group took part as the Bannister Boys, arriving at the arena to the music of Chariots of Fire. A new Fred Phillips MBE Best in Show trophy was awarded this year in memory of the village stalwart who died earlier this year, and presented by his daughters Ruth and Rose to the Rainbows for their synchronised swimming entry.

Andy Brown was the pageant MC, Andrew Watts provided the music and David Lee was MC of the afternoon

Meadowlark. Also taking part in the pageant were Ketton Players, Ketton Early Birds, 1st Kedington Beavers, Kedington Brownies, Kedington Cubs, Kedington Guides, 1st Kedington Sea Scouts, Unofficial Video Ltd, Kerry Curtis, Ketton Players, the Royal Women's British Legion and the Women's Institute.

Kedington Primary School

PRIMARY school pupils gave two performances of a show with an Olympic theme.

Year 3 and 4 pupils at Kedington Primary School gave two evening performances of Reach for the Sky, a story based on an Olympic committee in the organisational stage.

The pupils were led by class teachers Miss Amerio and Mrs Sheargold. A spokesman for the school said: "The production was excellent; some lovely songs and some very funny lines."

Haverhill

PUPILS from six primary schools and one academy got together to demonstrate their musical talents at two joint concerts.

The performances at Haverhill Arts Centre involved more than 250 pupils from Burton End, Place Farm, New Cangle, Westfield, Coupals and Clements primary schools in Haverhill, and a guest appearance by the choir from Castle Manor Academy.

The Suffolk County

Music Service organised the event as part of an eight-day programme of concerts in various venues around West Suffolk. All the children attending had been taught to play an instrument for a year by a Suffolk County Music Service Tutor within a whole class group, and the concerts were designed for the children to show off their instrumental skills and to sing and play together.

Samuel Ward Academy

SAMUEL Ward Academy was ringing with the sound of 200 voices for a singing festival.

The Year 5 students came from Clare, Kedington and Stanley Drapkin Primary in Steeple Bumpstead, as well as Coupals, New Cangle and Westfield Primary Schools in Haverhill, to join in the event.

Each school had a visit from Samuel Ward to do a workshop before the day and learn lots of songs, including My Favourite Things, I Just Can't Wait to be King and Only You. On the day, everyone came together to practise, and learn two new songs – Sing (the Diamond Jubilee song) and You Can't Stop the Beat from Hairspray.

There were also performances from the Samuel Ward choir and jazz band plus a preview of the school production of Grease.

MEMORIES

A SOUTH African is travelling to Suffolk to trace his ancestors and is looking for people with connections to the French family.

Members of the Haverhill Family & Local History Groups are preparing for a visit by Kevin French on July 5 and 6 to trace his ancestors roots in the town.

Kevin is journeying from South Africa, where his branch of the family settled in the 1870s to work in the Kimberly diamond mines. Earlier his family had lived for many years in Hamlet Road, Haverhill, right, where his great-great grandfather John, the eldest of 14 children, was born in 1819 to parents Thomas and Ann Andrews.

One hundred years later, there were still French families living in the town, in Duddery Road and Crowland Road, and the group would like to hear from anyone who is perhaps related to them and also, perhaps, to Kevin. Anyone who might be able to help or who would like to know more about tracing their family history can visit the free talk Your People & Places at Haverhill Library in Camps Road, on Saturday at 10.30am. To book a free place, call the library on (01440) 702638. For more information, contact Alan Bumpstead, Haverhill Family History Group, on (01440) 704157.

Mr Cutler lifts lid on life in the classroom

Everyone goes to school, but very few get to see it from the other side of the staffroom – until now. EMMA HIGGINBOTHAM meets Vernon Cutler, who's written a memoir about the ups and downs of being a primary school teacher at Haverhill's Cangle School and in Balsham.

AS retiring primary teacher Vernon Cutler put down his chalk for the final time, a colleague came to say goodbye. "She said 'gosh, you've had 20 odd years of teaching, you ought to write a book,'" recalls Vernon. "And I thought 'well, you never know!'"

Fast forward more than 20 years, and Vernon is lying on his acupuncture couch when the telephone rings.

"It was a phone call to say that her daughter had fallen over in the playground, and could she please come and pick her up? No-one was allowed to touch her," explains Vernon, shaking his head.

"When I was a teacher, if a child just fell over and grazed their knee, I'd just scoop them up, take them in and attend to the knee. But no. No-one in the school was allowed to touch her."

Ridiculous? "Truly. And actually uncaring in the extreme, because they're saying: 'We are far more concerned about protecting ourselves than we are, actually, about the child.'

"For me, the child came first, second and third, and suddenly I thought 'Oh my God'. And it so got to me! I thought 'this has got to be written!'"

Spurred into action, Vernon has penned Tales from the Chalkface, an anecdotal and very personal look at the wonderful world of teaching – and how it's changed over the last half-century.

"School is something that all of us experience, yet most of us see from outside the staffroom," he says. "This gives a behind-the-scenes glimpse of what education is like from the other side."

Born in 1944, Vernon grew up in Ilford with high hopes of becoming... a librarian. "How different can you get?" he chuckles. "To be honest, home for me wasn't the happiest place in the world, and I wanted to go away to college. To be a librarian, I would have had to work at a local library until I was 21 before the state would have paid for my training, but teaching was my golden opportunity: the state would pay and I could get out of the home."

And so 18-year-old Vernon packed his bags and headed to teacher training college, before eagerly taking up his first post at Haverhill's Cangle School in the mid-60s. But his first day wasn't exactly joyful.

"The initial feeling was 'Oh my god, what have I done!'" he laughs. "The school was old, and the stock was tatty in the extreme: the reading books were dog-eared, and we had absolutely no teaching aids."

"I thought 'Where do I start?' I've got a class of 30 kids, no resources, and there you are, get on with it! As you can imagine, it was a complete sinking feeling."

Yet Vernon, who lives in Kedington, refused to be beaten: "I spent the next couple of days making work cards and dreaming up whatever I could," he says. "I remember going to the local wood yard and saying 'have you got any off-cuts?' so I could do a bit of woodwork with them! It was make do and mend or go without."

His next post was at the altogether better-equipped Meadow School in Balsham, where he spent many happy years – as did his pupils, knowing that Mr Cutler was never very strict.

"Discipline was the one thing I was never very good at," he smiles. "It just wasn't me. I didn't want to be telling people off: I thought 'there's got to be other ways of doing this'."

"You've got to be organised and you've got to do your job, but beyond that, I didn't mind a bit of chatter, provided it was good-natured and provided the work was going on. I tended to be gentle to them: we were gentle with each other."

Yet the last six years of Vernon's teaching career were not so happy. Struck down with ME, he eventually had to retire on medical grounds: he still has the condition, but manages to control it. He was finding that he'd be struck down by a virus at the end of every term. By 1987, enough was enough: "The stress so got to my immune system that it was nearly killing me." He retired on health grounds at 43, and retrained as a psychotherapist.

Yet, he says, his memories are happy ones: "I enjoyed it immensely, certainly in the early years. It has enriched me more than anything else, and I don't think I could do the job I do now, had it not been for that tremendously enriching and challenging experience. It's challenging like nothing else on earth!"

■ Tales from the Chalkface is published by Troubador, £9.99, from Heffers and www.troubador.co.uk.

Firms in race to raise the most for hospice

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

MORE than 50 businesses are pitting their skills against each other to see who can raise the most for charity.

Several companies from the Haverhill area are battling it out to be named champs of the Towergate Accumulator Challenge after the three-month fundraiser kicked off last week.

Each of the 52 teams involved was invited to a launch evening by event sponsors Towergate Insurance to receive their £50 note. They now have to turn that £50 into as much money as possible for St Nicholas Hospice Care. Any fundraising activity is allowed – as long as it is legal.

Paul Whittaker, chief executive of Towergate Insurance, said at the launch: "Thank you for taking part in this year's challenge. We have raised more than £60,000 for the hospice over the last two years, which is a fantastic achievement. This year we want to raise even more."

Last year, 49 businesses fought to be crowned champion and turned their stake money – donated by Towergate – into £40,243 for the hospice.

The 2011 corporate champions were Curve Motion with a total of £3,452, raised through a sponsored skating

Take note: businesses prepare to raise funds for St Nicholas Hospice Care as part of the 2012 Towergate Accumulator Challenge marathon and slave auction.

Haverhill area businesses already signed up to take part include: Axa Insurance of High Street; The Gallery, of Lower Downs Slade; two teams from Genzyme, of Rockwood Way and Highpoint Prison, of Stradishall.

Abby Mayes, hospice corporate fundraiser, said: "The past two Accumulator Challenges have been really successful, but I know this year will be the best yet. Some of the teams have already let me know what imaginative events they have planned and it sounds like we are in for a fun three months.

"I can't wait to see who comes out on top at the end."

It is not too late for businesses to get involved. For more information, contact Abby on (01284) 715597 or email abby.mayes@stnh.org.uk.

Cupcakes by Simone

Celebrating her first year's anniversary

Simone's sweet success in first year of trading

Free cupcakes to celebrate birthday

ADVERTISEMENT FEATURE

LOCAL lady Simone Badenoch is celebrating a year in the baking business since setting up her own cupcake-making company, which she runs from her kitchen at home in Haverhill.

"I work from home, from my own working kitchen," she explains.

"I started completely from scratch I didn't have any qualifications or anything behind me – but it was something that took my fancy and it's been a whirlwind ever since.

"From something that I thought would just turn out as a hobby has become quite a thriving business already.

"I'm a trained primary school teacher and I've got two children of my own, and I wanted something to occupy me rather than going back into teaching straight away. I wasn't even a keen baker beforehand – it was my mum who said I could always take up baking and it turned out that I wasn't half bad at it!

"It's more the decorative side that I enjoy. I'm very particular with that – I love the vintage style and things that have a lot of detail, and which can be personalised for the customer."

Simone's website – www.cupcakesbysimone.com – is packed with photos of her scrumptious creations, which are topped with everything from elegant flowers to fun cartoon characters and quirky, personalised designs.

As well as cupcakes, Simone also does cupcake bouquets, giant cupcakes

The icing's on the cake: Simone's beautifully decorated cakes can be personalised for any special occasion and her latest idea, 'cake push-pops' – a spin on the 1980s tuck-shop favourite.

"To begin with I started baking cupcakes for friends and family but now, through word of mouth and Facebook, I'm making them for weddings, christenings, baby showers . . .

"I also do a standard box of 12 which can be personalised and they're quite good as gifts.

"I get all manner of orders through," she continues. "I've just done a Las Vegas giant cupcake with playing cards, dice and chips. It was all gold, red and black.

"The giant cupcakes are proving really popular as a different take on a traditional birthday cake. They feed about 15 to 20 so they're quite an ample size. And it's something a bit different."

Simone is delighted with her new home-based lifestyle, enabling her to spend time with her little ones while doing a job she loves.

"My children are 7 and 3 and they tend to help out with the eating more than anything – one likes the icing and one likes the sponge!"

Simone will be organising a free cupcake day throughout Haverhill Town Centre, where she'll be giving out free cupcakes in celebration of her first year in business – so make sure to pop into town this Saturday.

Show your local market some love this weekend

SHOPPERS are being urged to love their local market – and two craftspeople will be among regular stallholders on Saturday.

Haverhill market, run by St Edmundsbury Borough Council, will celebrate its market heritage by taking part in the national campaign 'Love Your Local Market'.

Two 'pop-up' stalls selling handbags and jewellery will help to promote the market. These local businesses have paid a nominal £10 to take a small pitch, to see if they would benefit from a permanent presence.

High St car ban backed by 70%

MORE than 70 per cent of residents answering a poll have backed the closure of Haverhill's High Street to traffic from 10am to 4pm – as police launch their latest purge against illegal parking.

The issue of whether the High Street should be fully pedestrianised, with barriers like those already used in Queen Street, has been debated for more than 20 years.

The Haverhill Area Working Party agreed to abandon the latest scheme for the street earlier this year after protests from traders and advice that it was unlikely that a public inquiry on the issue could be won.

At the recent Safer Neighbourhood Team priority-setting meeting, the issue of parking in the High Street was again agreed as a priority, even though the town's sector commander Insp Peter Ferrie has said he does not believe this is the best use of limited police resources.

At Tuesday night's meeting of Haverhill Town Council it was reported that a poll carried out among people at the council's health campaign market stall had revealed that of 750 responses, just over 70 per cent were in favour of the High Street being completely closed to traffic between 10am and 4pm.

Town clerk Will Austin said: "There was a very strong majority in favour of pedestrianisation and it does show a real strength of feeling on the issue. One of the reasons that the Haverhill Area Working Party decided not to proceed was that their consultation had only 108 replies.

"These figures will be passed to HAWP at their meeting in July and we feel it is vital that a decision is made on the issue rather than just having it left hanging. Dealing with parking problems is part of this and we want to listen to the traders and make sure that there is proper provision for Blue Badge holders.

"The town council is in favour of pedestrianisation and we are sure that there must be compromises which can make it possible, which is what these 750 shoppers are telling us they want."

PC Will Wright told the town council that 13 tickets had been issued to motorists this week and that the enforcement campaign would continue.

Flower power for villagers

A COUNTRY church will be welcoming visitors to a flower festival this weekend. St Mary's in Weston Colville will hold its festival on Saturday and Sunday. The church will be open from 1pm on Saturday and all day on Sunday, with a chance to see the flowers, as well as a history display, with tea and cakes on offer. The White Acre Clarinets will give a concert in the church at 7.30pm on Sunday, with no tickets needed, but a retiring collection made.

Open day at pre-school

PARENTS looking for a preschool are invited along to an open day at one popular local group on Saturday. The Thurlow Pre-school Open Day will be held from noon to 2pm, with a chance to look around the purpose-built setting and see what they are able to offer your child. There will be activities on offer, games and plenty of fun to be had, with free entry. The group meets in the grounds of Thurlow Primary School, which is also holding a fete on the same day.

Epic tour in memory of loving sister and actress

Raising awareness: Richard Bowen, whose sister Lucy died from lung cancer, aged 32.

THIS time last year, Lucy Bowen was living life to the full.

An actress – who appeared alongside David Jason in primetime hit A Touch of Frost – she worked hard. Out-going and charismatic, with a huge circle of friends, she played hard too. And Lucy was also a dedicated fitness fan: she cycled or swam every day without fail.

But then, towards the end of the summer, Lucy started to feel poorly. She had a niggly cough; suffered several bouts of nausea and sickness. Thinking she'd fallen foul of a recurring bug, Lucy went to the GP for antibiotics. Yet still the symptoms came back.

Eventually, in October, she was taken into hospital – where tests revealed a large tumour in her lungs. Roughly the size of her heart, it was confirmed to be lung cancer, which had already spread to both her spine and her liver.

Although Lucy underwent chemo and radiotherapy, there was little doctors could do. She died less than four months later – aged only

Richard Bowen is to embark on an epic charity challenge in memory of his sister – A Touch of Frost actress Lucy Bowen – who died aged 32 after suffering lung cancer. Interview by ALICE RYAN

32. “She stayed positive all the way through: she wouldn’t even talk about dying,” remembers older brother Richard. “She had a mug which said ‘Lucy Bowen: Kicking Cancer’s Arse’: she was determined to smash this thing.”

“In the end I wanted her to know it was okay to let go, that she wasn’t letting anyone down. She’d go up to the window in the hospital and say ‘I want to be out there riding my bike’, but we knew she’d never ride a bike again.”

“She was like a bird in a cage. When she died, it was a kind of release.”

“She wasn’t the type of person to be cooped up in a hospital all the time. She was so young, so full of life.”

“Lucy’s death proves that lung cancer can affect anybody,” Richard said. “She was young; she was very fit. She had smoked, but she was only a really light smoker – maybe three cigarettes a day – and the consultant said that was unlikely to be the cause; even if it was, if someone’s smoked does that mean they deserve to get cancer?”

“He said that Lucy’s cancer couldn’t be explained: there’s no history in the family, she hadn’t been in touch with asbestos or exposed to radon. . . He said it was down to statistics: she was the one in whatever number it is who just get lung cancer. I guess someone has to be.”

Richard has decided to share his sister’s story to raise awareness of lung cancer – especially among younger people. “There is a perception that lung cancer only affects old people who’ve smoked 40 a day for 40 years: that’s simply not the case.”

“The key message we’re trying to get across is that if you’ve had a cough for more than three weeks, you should go to the doctor. It’s most probably nothing, but if it’s cancer, the earlier it’s caught the better.”

Lung cancer statistics are shocking. More than one in five deaths in the UK – that’s 22 per cent – are from lung cancer, making it the most common cause of cancer death in this country. It is, in fact, the most common cancer in the world, with an estimated 1.61 million cases diagnosed in 2008 alone.

Since Lucy’s diagnosis, her whole family have lent their support to the Roy Castle Lung Cancer Foundation, set up in memory of the much-loved Record Breakers presenter. Roy died of lung cancer in 1994; he had never smoked. The Foundation is the only UK charity wholly dedicated to defeating lung cancer.

Richard is currently in training for a giant bike ride to raise both cash and awareness for the cause: over five days in August, he will cycle the 290 miles from his Somersham home to Swansea, via the capital city.

“I’ll be following the route Lucy took,” he explains. “We spent the first years of our lives here in Cambridgeshire. Lucy went on to work in London, and she spent her last months in Wales, where our parents live now."

Covering 50 miles a day, 50 per cent off-road and 50 per cent on-road, it's set to be a real slog.

"If Lucy was here now, she'd probably be laughing at me," smiles Richard. "We used to do a lot of cycling together and she was always out in front: she'd give it 100 per cent, while I'd hold 10 per cent in reserve in case we hit a big hill.

"But that was her approach to life, really: she did everything to the full."

When Lucy turned 30, she and Richard discussed doing 'an epic cycle ride, before we got too old'. "When she was ill I would say 'You've got to get better so we can do this ride – even if you only join me for a mile'. Now I'm doing it in celebration of her life."

Lucy and her siblings, Richard and little sister Ruth, spent their early years in Papworth, St Ives and then Barrington, where they went to primary school. "She always wanted to be an actress: she did youth theatre and really got the bug," explains Richard, 35.

Going on to become a professional, Lucy appeared in numerous TV shows, including long-running soap Hollyoaks. But working on ITV's A Touch of Frost was, says Richard, among her proudest achievements. "She had quite a big part as a police officer and she really enjoyed it. David Jason was very fond of her: when she died he wrote to us, saying how sorry he was."

When she was diagnosed with lung cancer, it was, remembers Richard, earth-shattering. "Initially she was very distressed: we all were. But then she decided there was no way she was going to die, that she was just too young.

"We knew the prognosis wasn't good and I tried to tackle it with her a few times: I wanted to know if she had any kind of 'bucket list', things she wanted to do... But Lucy was clear that she didn't want to travel the world – she wanted to spend time with her family, because that's what she loved."

Richard and his wife Helen have two small boys – Tomos, 3, and Nye, 17 months – and another baby on the way. "Lucy was a lovely auntie. I think she thought she might never be responsible enough to have her own children, so she lived vicariously through mine."

Richard describes Lucy as a larger-than-life character: "She was crazy, a real party girl. And she had to go her own way: she didn't like taking advice! She was also very funny. She could be really acerbic. Even when she was ill, her sense of humour never failed.

"She went to collect a prescription and discovered the pharmacist had given her antidepressants by mistake. Her reaction was 'I haven't got depression, love. I've got cancer'. And when a bloke pushed in front of her in a bar, she asked 'Would you push in front of a girl with cancer? Hmm? Well I've got bloody cancer'..."

"She was also very glamorous. Even when she was really unwell she'd turn visitors away if she hadn't got her full face of make-up on.

"It's really, really hard to describe her, to be honest. She was just such a big character."

The first consultant Lucy saw said only palliative care could be offered. She sought a second opinion and ended up undergoing radical chemo and also some radiotherapy.

Lucy was constantly in and out of hospital. The chemo left her very frail; unable to keep food and drink down. Her lungs kept filling with fluid, which made it harder and harder to breathe.

"By the time she was diagnosed, she was already functioning on just a quarter of one lung," explains Richard, who works for the Environment Agency. "Apparently the fact she was so fit actually masked the symptoms: in someone less fit, the lack of lung function would have become apparent more quickly. In the end she even found talking quite hard; she was on oxygen most of the time."

Although she was nursed at the family home in Wales for some time, Lucy died in hospital.

"She hadn't been too good so they decided to take her in. She didn't want to be alone, so she asked mum and dad to stay with her.

"They were there for three days, round the clock. It got to about 10pm on the third night and she said 'I'm going to go to sleep now. You can go home'. She died at 5am the next morning."

More than 200 people attended Lucy's funeral. "She wouldn't discuss dying. I've got a letter from her where she said 'I don't want to consider what my death will look like', so she hadn't made any plans or left any requests. It was all very modern, with a wicker coffin, and we played lots of music we knew she loved."

Throwing themselves into raising funds and awareness has, says Richard, helped the family cope in the immediate aftermath of Lucy's death. Between them, they have already raised more than £5,000 for the Roy Castle Foundation.

"Lucy meant so much to so many people; we all miss her. I think it really helps to do something positive. If anything good can come out of her death it will be raising awareness of lung cancer and its symptoms: if we can help just one person get diagnosed earlier – and survive the disease – that would be an amazing legacy."

Women to the fore

BY NANCY GROVES

TO most of us, Belinda Lang will always be Bill, the long-suffering mother in classic nineties BBC sitcom, 2point4children. And as it turns out, she's still playing mum today, arriving to our interview mobile phone in hand, with her 21-year-old daughter Lily on the other end of the line from university.

"We probably speak to each other too much," says Lang apologetically, once another mini-crisis has been averted. "She rings a lot, though I haven't actually seen her for at least three weeks. But if she's on the phone, at least I know she's there."

Such maternal cosiness is a far cry from Lang's latest role in the stage premiere of Ladies in Lavender, set in a tiny Cornish fishing village in 1938 and playing at the Cambridge Arts Theatre until Saturday.

It's certainly not the first time that Lang has explored this particular time period after critically acclaimed turns in My Boy Jack, the story of Rudyard Kipling's son, and Forgotten Voices, a verbatim piece based on interviews from the Imperial War Museum about women's experiences of war.

"Yes," says Lang. "It fits very neatly into an area that interests me and one that makes me very sad. These women lost all their men (and their potential men) in the First World War. It was a lonely life. But there was also that element of the stiff upper lip; that women had to hold onto themselves and do as much good as they could in the world and not complain. That really lives with me – the strength that those women had to have. They might not have known they had it, but they did."

Ladies in Lavender is a different sort of piece to the previous two. "It's got a lot of depth to its subject matter, but it requires a light touch," says Lang. "It's not a play where you have to hit great big heavy notes because these aren't the sort of women to be self-indulgent. One of them will say

'well, it was the war. One got on with things'.

"In a different kind of play, you might land up in a heap on the floor. Not here. It's a very good script – spare, but everything's there. And in its own way, it's got a slightly cinematic quality."

The casting helps hugely, says Lang, who plays buttoned-up Janet opposite former child star Hayley Mills as the lovelorn Ursula.

"Hayley is a married woman in real life, of course, but she still has this wonderfully childlike quality that's perfect for the part. Ursula has never grown up. She's never had any relationships – she's only had her father and her sister. Hayley has that quality somehow, so it's not something we have to work hard on. And my character's very bossy – I say no more!"

During her early acting years, she and actor husband Hugh Fraser – Captain Hastings in ITV's Poirot – had a fixed regime. "I used to do 2point4 Children every year, and the rest of the year, I would do one play and have the school holidays off. Once I got into that rhythm, it was the perfect life. Then, in 2000, Lang's on-screen husband, Gary Olsen, died of cancer. "And that ended that. We could have carried on. But Gary's death changed everything."

Lang is philosophical about her career path since. "I was brought up in the theatre, (both her parents were actors) and feel very comfortable here so I went very naturally back to the place I'd been in before."

Spending more time on stage has also led to a new career avenue – directing. "Lots of friends have said to me over the years, 'you should really direct,' and I was a bit nervous about it for lots of reasons," says Lang. "Then I thought of Present Laughter, a play I'd been in a lot, and I thought, 'if I can't direct Present Laughter, I can't direct anything.'"

But she could and she did. "And it was such a relief! I just felt so happy doing the job and it was very consuming. If you direct properly, which I think I did, you work very, very hard but feel terribly excited the whole time. There are so many strings to it, the music, the props and, of course, the actors first and foremost. It was

Does she now find it hard not giving notes to director Robin Lefevre in the Ladies in Lavender rehearsal room? "It's not hard with this director because he's in control," says Lang. "It's very hard when I think someone hasn't done their homework. Having said that, I'm still interfering and bossy and I probably drive Robin round the bend for all I know. I'm only a frustrated director when I think, 'does anyone know I've even done this?' It's difficult when one gets older to start new things."

Something Janet and Ursula know all too well.

Says Lang: "It's that space they have in their lives, that thinking time. Life is slow. There's no phoning or texting or Googling or emailing. There's no telly, they don't go anywhere. They knit, they sit, they cook a little and they do good works. I'd find that tough." Then again, she adds, "a little peace of mind might be nice."

"I've been able to live at a time when there hasn't been a war, and where I've been able to work and be a mother and have a lovely life. It would be an insult to every woman who has fought for her rights not to appreciate what we are now able to achieve. But of course with all that comes the idiosyncrasy of keeping up with it all – the fact that people expect an immediate response to everything. I find it really anxiety-inducing. Even my daughter says it's all a bit much."

Festival promises a lively mix in city's most historic buildings

THIS year's Cambridge Summer Music Festival promises to turn "eclecticism into an art form" with a diverse line-up of concerts in some of the city's most historic buildings.

Highlights of the festival – which runs from July 13 to August 4 – include complete performances of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos by period instrument specialists Florilegium (Sunday, July, 15, 4.30pm and 8.15pm, Trinity College Chapel), Debussy's Images by internationally renowned pianist Melvyn Tan (Saturday, July 28, 1pm & 7.30pm, West Road Concert Hall) and Bach's Trio Sonatas played by organist Anne Page at a series of six lunchtime concerts in some of Cambridge's most beautiful sacred spaces.

Other well-known names gracing this year's festival include former BBC Young Musician of the Year Nicola Benedetti, pictured, bringing her Benedetti Trio to play Strauss, Brahms and Tchaikovsky (Friday, July 20, 7.30pm, Cambridge Guildhall), and the legendary Allegri Quartet, Britain's longest-running chamber music ensemble, who will be giving two concerts on successive afternoons, featuring quartets from Haydn to Anthony Payne, by way of Beethoven, Borodin and Tchaikovsky (Thursday/Friday, July 26/27, 3.30pm, Emmanuel United Reformed Church).

STORAGE 24

Certificate 15, 1h27m

The good old days when ET simply wanted to phone home are long gone.

If aliens descend on Earth now they don't want to sit contentedly in the basket of a child's bicycle and soar serenely across a perfect moonlit sky.

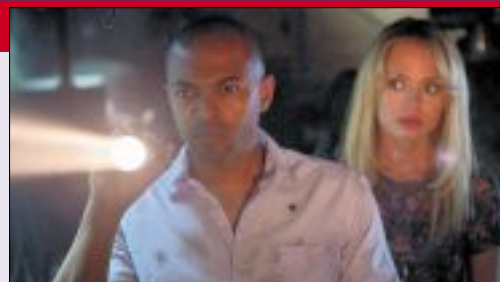

Instead they would much prefer to annihilate and conquer, preferably via a series of special effects-laden set pieces that reduce iconic landmarks to steaming piles of twisted metal.

A 24-hour storage facility in south London is the epicentre of the destruction in Johannes Roberts's gore-splattered sci-fi horror.

The building's labyrinthine corridors and snaking air ducts provide a suitably claustrophobic setting for the battle royale between a hideous extraterrestrial predator and a motley crew of ill-equipped human prey.

The film opens with a suspected plane crash which causes widespread panic and destruction. Metal crates are strewn among the debris, with nothing inside apart from a gooey residue slathered over the interior.

Nearby, wise-cracking Charlie (Noel Clarke) and his best friend Mark (Colin O'Donoghue) arrive at a storage facility to collect some of Charlie's belongings. A malfunctioning security system traps the young men inside the building with employee Jake (Alex Price) and electrician Bob (Geoff Bell), who attempt to reboot the mainframe and open the metal shutters.

Meanwhile, Charlie and Mark head for a locker where they run into Charlie's embittered ex-girlfriend Shelley (Antonia Campbell-Hughes), her gal pal Nikki (Laura Haddock) and snarky pal Chris (Jamie Thomas King). As the former lovers trade insults, a growl reverberates through the building.

Based on an original screenplay by leading man Clarke, Storage 24 is solid, entertaining but unremarkable genre fare littered with undernourished characters and predictable twists.

Carrying on a green tradition

FOR the last 15 years, Nick Hamilton, son of the late Geoff Hamilton, has been busy following in his father's green-fingered footsteps.

Just wandering around some of the 38 small gardens created for TV at Barnsdale in Leicester, you can feel Geoff's ever-practical presence, as areas are teeming with a huge variety of plants along with practical substitutes for expensive accessories (including a circular finial made from a toilet balcock – but you'd never know – sitting on top of a pretty, home-made obelisk).

These are all testament to Geoff's money-saving principles, his attitude of having a go himself at making something before shelling out on an expensive equivalent, ever aware of his audience, many of whom would have been cost-conscious.

Nick, who took over the business after his father's death in 1996, shows me the old copper immersion heater transformed into a rose water

by Hannah Stephenson

feature in the quirky Reclaimed Garden, a typical example of his father's ideas of economy.

"My father wanted Barnsdale to be representative of what people have at home. Achievability was all-important. He set the springboard from which we've diverged."

The TV garden all started in the 1970s, when Geoff moved into a house on the Barnsdale Hall estate and was renting some land at the top of the hill. He was asked to do a guest appearance on Gardeners' World from what is now known as 'The Original Barnsdale'.

In 1979 he joined the team permanently, but soon found that there was little room to experiment and in 1983 he found Barnsdale as it is today, a mile away, a Victorian farmhouse with more than five acres of land.

He created the gardens between 1983-96 but it wasn't until 1997 that they were opened to the public.

"My father always said that a garden is a work in progress, so we continue to carry that on," says Nick.

The beautiful Artisan Cottage Garden, Allotment, Woodland Walk and Artificial Rock Garden are just a few of the concepts which have been developed and continue to offer ideas to gardeners today.

Nick acknowledges that times have changed since his father's TV heyday.

"Everybody's lives have changed. Retired people are doing more now than they ever did, as are people in work. But it's making people realise that within their busy lives there's still time for gardening and vegetable growing."

In the last decade there has

KEEPING THE MESSAGE ALIVE: Nick Hamilton says gardening is about patience, nurturing and getting your hands dirty.

been more emphasis on less time-consuming gardening, with demand for easy-maintenance plants, plants which don't need staking and less lawn. But Nick has reservations about this.

"We have one or two gardens here which are lower maintenance than others," he says.

"And yes, you can go out and buy a £300 tree which will have an instant effect. But that's not gardening. Gardening is all about patience and nurturing, getting out there and getting your hands dirty. Low-maintenance gardening in a way isn't gardening."

He believes that were his father alive today, he would be over the moon at the way Barnsdale has developed. But he doesn't believe the TV cameras could ever return on a regular basis.

"Our tagline is The People's Garden and that's what it is – a garden for the people. I wouldn't now want to stop people seeing the garden, even for one day a week."

He says that BBC Gardeners' World today is far removed from his father's programmes.

"They're still searching for the magic formula to recreate the way the programme was when it was here. They've lost their way with what they think people want from the programme. People need to be shown in the right way and the right style to inspire them to get out there."

"What I'm hearing from visitors is that 20 years ago everything they did on Friday revolved around making sure they were in front of the television at 8.30pm to watch Gardeners' World. Now, if they're in and there's nothing better on, they'll watch it. I think that's really sad."

Despite encouragement from Plant Heritage, Nick has so far not held a National Collection at Barnsdale.

"I don't have the time at the moment to do it. I love my plants and I'm predominantly a nurseryman. I really like penstemon, but there are lots of plants I love. The problem is finding a National Collection which really inspires you."

With a full-time staff of 13, Nick says the garden won't further expand because land is not for sale around the site.

But there is room for a 39th garden, a work in progress.

"The 39th garden will be a garden for people with limited mobility – not a disabled person's garden. It won't only be raised beds – we will use tools to cope with the lower levels."

And it is clear that Barnsdale is moving with the times. "I keep toying with the idea of artificial grass as well," he confides.

I wonder what his father would make of that.

Skoda brings on the Rapids

SKODA has released further details of its fast-approaching Rapid compact saloon following a concept image some months ago. Sized in between the Fabia and Octavia, the Rapid aims to capture sales in a corner of the market it currently doesn't serve.

It's likely that it will end up sharing a lot of parts and technology with the Volkswagen Jetta. However, the Rapid is the first Skoda to showcase the next generation of the company's styling.

Despite being smaller in every direction, it looks quite similar in proportions to a current generation Octavia, but with a nod towards the sort of straight-line architecture that the first Volkswagen-era Octavia used at its 2001 release.

Skoda claims the Rapid will have room for five plus their baggage, with five petrol and two diesel engines offered at launch.

With the fast efficiency advances being made with small, turbocharged petrol engines and the impending Euro 6 emissions laws that take into account diesel engines' particulate emissions, Skoda is anticipating that buyers will begin to swing back towards petrol.

RICHARD Whiteside hit an unbeaten half-century as Helions Bumpstead sunk leaders Mill Green in the Adams Harrison Midweek League, Division 3W.

His knock of 56 helped Helions to post 11 for 4 in their 20 overs, and Tom Wrenn then took 4 for 15 to restrict Mill Green to 110 for 8.

In the same division, there were wins for Linton, Wrattling Lions and Ashdon.

Linton were in great form with the bat in beating Sawston II. Nick Griggs made 72 and Alan Campbell 40 as they posted a daunting 190 for 6. In reply, Sawston were stopped short on 127 for 6, Jack Hayden hitting 47 not out.

Phil Dingley's unbeaten 46 helped Wrattling Lions (107 for 2) beat Balsham (103 for 2). Russ Davis added 37 for the victors, while Mark Housden made 33 not out and Steve Saunders 37 for the beaten side.

Mark Collins hit 59 and Ryan Duers 37 as Ashdon made 132 for 4 to overhaul Ickleton's 131 for 2 in the final over.

In Division 1W, champions

Whiteside, Wrenn sparkle as Helions beat the leaders

Sawston remain unbeaten, having seen off Weston Colville by 57 runs.

Marc Pearson's 93 saw them post 175 for 2, with Adam Dellar contributing 55 not out. Paul Dean hit 60 and Trevor Westley 38 in reply, but Colville were restricted to 118 for 9.

Abington's Stuart Duquemin scored an undefeated 59 and then took 3 for 19 as his team, who totalled 125 for 4, beat Haverhill (104 for 6).

Hundon's 127 for 5 was not enough to overhaul Saffron Walden, who earlier posted 155 for 3.

Horseheath lead the way in Division 2W, Gary Ellis hitting 33 not out to steer them to an eight-wicket victory over Fulbourn, who set a target of 104 for 5.

Haverhill seconds dismissed Abington II for only 54, Mick Rinaldi taking 3 for 7. Adam Thompson did his best to rescue the situation with 3 for 17, but Liam Savage's 41 took Haverhill to 59 for 5.

Babraham's 125 for 5 was just short of their target as they lost to Shelfords (136 for 3).

In Division 1E, Hundon II gave it a good go before losing to leaders Long Melford, Jack Beaumont hitting 34 as they posted an even 100 before taking 4 for 17 in their opponents' reply of 104 for 6.

Young side owe win to Pass master!

DAN Pass starred as a young Haverhill seconds side, with nine players aged under 21, returned from Felixstowe Corinthians with a superb win in the Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship, Division Six.

Haverhill were put in to bat and Sam Hartshorn (16) and Steve Fox (15) started in aggressive fashion until Hartshorn departed with the score on 25.

Ben Wilkins (17) and Pass (11) came and went and at the half way stage Haverhill had reached 64 for 3 against some very tight and tidy bowling.

Soon after the drinks break Haverhill had slumped to 79 for 7 with 15 overs remaining, but a good partnership between Martyn Wilkins (26 not out) and Ryan Fowler (28) moved the score to 140 for 7 before Fowler was unselfishly run out attempting a third run. The innings closed on 144 for 8.

It looked as though that would be a tough target to chase on a wicket that was helping the bowlers, and that is how it turned out.

Wilkins (2 for 13) and Pass (4 for 5) opened the bowling and Pass tore into the batting as he wrecked the top order by bowling out four batsmen.

Felixstowe had collapsed to 13 for 7, with a run-out not helping their cause. James Boulton picked up two wickets and Callum Brunning the last as the hosts were all out for only 50.

Skipper Wilkins said: "Our bowling was good especially Dan Pass and we ground out a decent score after being in trouble when we batted, with Ryan Fowler showing admirable calmness under pressure."

Haverhill Thirds fared even worse than the firsts, being dismissed for 41 and losing by nine wickets to Walsham-le-Willows in Division 8W.

■ Haverhill firsts saw their scheduled match against Worlington in the Hunts County Bats Suffolk League, Division One, cancelled on Sunday. Haverhill II's match at Thurston in Division Three was also off.

Horseheath up to gallop again

A FEEL-GOOD factor is firmly back in place at Horseheath following their fifth victory of the season over Camden II.

Dan Goldsmith's team have now won as many games as they did in the whole of last season, when they finished third from bottom and just avoided relegation.

The return of Robbie Ketteridge, Martin Farrant and Andy Edwards has helped, while a number of promising youngsters are coming through.

Captain Goldsmith led the way with 67 at bottom side Camden on Saturday, with Ketteridge adding 33 and Stephen Lanceman getting 25 in their 177 for 9. Ali Khan picked up 4 for 39.

The basement boys were blown away in reply and all out for 77, Ben Piper (3 for 16) and Martin Giles (3 for 7) doing the damage.

There were also nice moments for 15-year-old bowlers Ashley Giles and Jake Ellis, who got a wicket each on the first occasions they have been handed the ball for the first team.

"I think we won five of our last seven to keep us up last season and we've kept that going," said Horseheath's vice-skipper Gary Ellis.

"We've got a few people back and we're doing well. We've got a bit more quality and depth, and some good youngsters coming through.

"We're all performing generally better than we did last year and playing more as a team."

■ A Haverhill side missing leading wicket-taker Dan Poole and star batsman Satyajit Satbhai were thrashed by in-form Mistleley in the Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship.

The visitors' captain won the toss and put Haverhill in to bat – maintaining their run of batting first in every league match this season, with skipper Simon Youngs having lost the toss seven times out of eight.

great form, dismantling the hosts' batting.

Australian Young took 2 for 19 in 14 overs, while former Suffolk opening bowler Pineo was even more devastating, with 5 for 22 from 16 overs as Haverhill were reduced to 40 for 9.

A partnership of 24 between James Smith (14) and Joe Woodley (10no) for the last wicket at least got them up to 64 as Stuart Dove (3 for 17) was the other wicket-taker.

Haverhill's bowling display was excellent in the circumstances as Woodley bowled Griggs for a duck in the first over and Nigel Brunning also took a wicket.

But from 22 for 2, Pineo (30no) saw the visitors home by eight wickets.

Youngs said: "They were a class act and in a different league to us.

"We know at times this season we will be up against it and today was one of those days. Losing the toss every week doesn't help us either, but hopefully that will even itself out over the rest of the campaign.

"The spirit and atmosphere is still good and as long as you are learning from these games it will make us stronger in the long run."

Replay bid fails after bowls-out

HISTON and Horseheath plan to play a friendly on Sunday after their pleas to replay their CCA Invitation Cup quarter-final fell on deaf ears.

An unfit pitch meant Horseheath's players journeyed to Histon for a 10-ball bowl out to decide who advanced to the last four, with Histon triumphing 2-1.

But both teams wanted to postpone the fixture and have another go this coming weekend – as did Cambridge NCII and Yelling – with the semis still four weeks away.

However, CCA officer and honorary competitions secretary Martyn Livermore said allowing cup games to be rescheduled could have a detrimental knock-on effect for other cup games.

For example, a tie involving a first team could be rescheduled and then clash with their second team's cup game, forcing the second team to default.

Rule 48 in the CCA's constitution states Invitation Cup matches must be completed on the day of the match, with only the semi-finals and final having reserve days.

Livermore said: "Clubs have agreed to that rule being put in there."

Hunts Premier League, Division Two, despite a six-wicket haul for Granta by Callum Hale.

Knocks from Paul Dean (52) and Joe Robins (34) took Colville's total to 182 for 9 despite Hale's impressive figures of 6 for 45 from 14 overs.

Granta's top order were dismissed cheaply, though Ollie Drake did his best to salvage the game for the hosts. The wickets continued to tumble, however, and he was left stranded on 50 not out as Granta were all out for 108.

Alex Meddle (4 for 25) and skipper Adie Westley (4 for 44) did most of the damage for the visitors.
